

Member Spotlight – Yasmine Gray

Queensland Member Yasmine Gray has recently been appointed to the role of Chief Executive Officer at Queensland architectural and engineering firm, McVeigh.

Yasmine, who has a strong background in marketing, communications and business management, has been brought in to build on the existing solid foundations and take the business to new heights.

“It’s a big thing to take over a successful business, that has been built up over many years and with much hard work, and to be trusted to take it forwards for the years ahead. That factor is not lost on me and I am honoured to have the opportunity to work with such talented people at McVeigh,” says Yasmine.

Yasmine was formerly Executive Director at leading communications firm Red Havas and has worked with a wide range of organisations across many sectors providing her business and strategic counsel including construction, architecture, logistics, resources and engineering.

Yasmine takes over from the firm’s founder Michael McVeigh, who remains in the business and is going to turn his focus back to his primary passion of design and client relations.

“Yasmine has excellent business and people skills that we know are going to take McVeigh into a strong and exciting future,” said Michael. “It was important to find someone that not only had exceptional executive ability but that would have the passion and creativity required to take the business to the next level.

“Yasmine has already shared a range of exciting ideas she plans to bring to the business so I look forward to seeing the positive impact these will have, both for our people and our clients, as they start to take shape.”

McVeigh, based in Brisbane, is a fully integrated consultancy offering architectural, civil and structural engineering expertise.
